PICKS OF THE WEEK

Tiburon Wine fest returns Saturday

The Tiburon Wine Festival runs from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 2 at Point Tiburon Plaza, 1701 Tiburon Blvd. Canceled in 2020 and delayed in 2021 due to the pandemic, the festival, now in its 38th year, showcases an array of vintages from 50 wineries from Napa and Sonoma counties and beyond, plus food from 10 local eateries. Live music will be provided by Pardon the Interruption. Attendees must show proof of vaccination or a negative COVID test within the last 48 hours. Tickets are $85 and must be purchased in advance. The event is fully outdoors and will go on rain or shine. tiburonchamber.org/tiburon-wine-festival.

Art show focuses on imperfection

The O'Hanlon Center for the Arts will present its 17th annual "Wabi Sabi" exhibition Sept. 30-Nov. 11. Wabi sabi is a Japanese aesthetic concept celebrating the simple and imperfect, with an emphasis on the impermanent, giving the viewer time to contemplate what's usually ignored. The show includes all manner of media and is juried by photographer Marcia Lieberman. On Oct. 5, there will be an artists' roundtable 4-5:30 p.m., followed by an opening reception 5:30-7:30 p.m. The center is open 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Thursdays-Fridays, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Saturdays. The O'Hanlon gallery is located at 616 Throckmorton Ave., Mill Valley; admission is free. 415-388-4331 or ohanloncenter.org.

Vote for your favorite at drive-in short-film festival

The Lark Theater is sponsoring a drive-in showing the finalists of "The Manhattan Short Film Festival 2021" at 7:20 p.m. Oct. 1. The festival received more than 900 submissions from around the world, with the 10 finalists representing Norway, Northern Ireland, Canada, Afghanistan, England, France and the U.S. Viewers at more than 300 screenings around the world, including in Corte Madera, will get to vote for the festival's winner. The drive-in is at the Village at Corte Madera overflow parking lot across from Nordstrom on Redwood Highway, Corte Madera. Tickets are $15 solo drivers, $25 for two or more per car, advance sales only. 415-924-5111 or larktheater.net.

Mill Valley Film Festival includes shorts with local ties

By EMILY LAVIN

elavin@thearknewspaper.com

After being held almost exclusively online last year due to the pandemic, this year's Mill Valley Film Festival is headed back to theaters with 118 films and shorts from 39 countries — including the world premiere of a dance short by Tiburon's Caroline Liviakis and a documentary featuring pioneering Belvedere environmentalist Martin Griffin.

The 44th annual festival runs Oct. 7-17 with live screenings and in-person appearances by actors and directors at venues in Mill Valley, San Rafael and Berkeley. Proof of vaccination or a recent negative COVID-19 test and facemasks are required for in-person screenings, which will be at reduced theater capacity.

As has become the norm for many events amid the pandemic, the festival will also offer an online program this year, with several of its feature-length films and shorts available to stream from home.

Liviakis' 6-minute dance film, "Boys and Girls," is set to screen at 8 p.m. Oct. 11 at the Smith Rafael Film Center as part of the program "Shorts: The Ocean," featuring works with themes of courage, self-confidence and renewal. Liviakis will be on hand for an on-stage question-and-answer session after the program, which is also available to stream on-demand throughout the festival.

"Boys and Girls" features a dueling dance duet between a girl (Liviakis) and a boy (Paul Barris, who has appeared on "Dancing with the Stars" and "So You Think You Can Dance") locked in a "seductive game of emotional warfare."

Liviakis' brother, Tiburon resident Thomas Liviakis, composed the music for the short, which includes riffs on several styles of dance, including the jitterbug, waltz, salsa and tango. The dance featured in the short also draws influences from martial arts, modern dance and jazz.

SCREENGAB

Tiburon's Caroline Liviakis stars in and choreographed her new dance short, 'Boys and Girls,' opposite Paul Barris. The film will screen Oct. 11 — with Liviakis on hand for a question-and-answer session — and stream on demand as part of the Mill Valley Film Festival, which begins Oct. 7.

"I hope that through this film, people see the value that dance brings to film, that dance can communicate an engaging story that anyone, regardless of dance experience, can understand," Liviakis says.

The 28-year-old Liviakis currently splits her time between Tiburon and Los Angeles, where she's an adjunct professor of dance at Loyola Marymount University.

She previously founded the Caroline Liviakis Dance Co. and served as artistic director and a dancer for the troupe. She's since transitioned to directing and choreographing films, commercials and music videos.

"Tule Elk: The Killing of a Native Species" is an 8-minute documentary short examining the decades-long controversy between conservationists and the National Park Service over its management of the free-roaming tule elk in Point Reyes National Seashore. Activists are battling culling practices to allow for expanded private ranching inside the park, saying the elk are starving to death, trapped behind a fence separating them from grazing lands used by cattle, and don't have enough access to fresh water amid the extreme drought.

Griffin is featured in the film — critical of the park's approach and seeking a balance between commercial ranching and healthy elk herds. Now 101, he helped prevent development of the Marin and Sonoma county coasts and played a primary role in the creation the Audubon Canyon Ranch in 1961, which became the gateway to the Point Reyes National Seashore. He's been honored by the Park Service and was previously featured in 2013's "Rebels With a Cause" for his efforts to preserve the seashore.

"Tule Elk" screens at 4 p.m. Oct. 9 at the

October arts preview

Symphony's new season leads full slate of arts to check out

By CAROL BENET

cbenet@thearknewspaper.com

The San Francisco Symphony starts its new season in October, and the month also brings new shows from the San Francisco Playhouse and new exhibits at the Legion of Honor.

Music

San Francisco Performances: The organization is returning to live performances for its 2021-2022 season, starting with the Catalyst Quartet playing George Walker's "Lyric for Strings" on Oct. 7. Its Pivot Festival, a series that explores the presence of the past and the impact of memories, runs Oct. 20-24 with performances by singer and composer Theo Bleckmann; chamber-music group Brooklyn Rider with tenor Nicholas Phan; the Living Earth Show and Post:ballet; and violinist Jennifer Koh with pianist Missy Mazzoli. The month wraps up with pianist Jan Lisiecki playing an all-Chopin program on Oct. 27.

Info: sfperformances.org or 415-392-2545.

San Francisco Opera: Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio," will show Oct. 14-30. In the show, a woman disguised as a guard enters a detention center to try to solve the mystery of her activist husband's disappearance.

Info: sfopera.com or 415-864-3330.

New Century Chamber Orchestra: The orchestra, founded locally in 1992, has four performances scheduled in four different venues across the Bay Area Sept. 30-Oct. 3. The Oct. 3 concert takes place at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere. The program for all four concerts includes Mark-Anthony Turnage's "Lament," Mieczyslaw Weinberg's "Concertino for Violin and Strings" and Josef Suk's "Serenade for Strings, Op. 6."

Info: ncco.org or 415-392-4400.

San Francisco Symphony: The symphony starts its new season Oct. 1-2 with vocalist Esperanza Spalding, pianist Leo Genovese, drummer Terri Lyne Carrington and the Alonzo King Lines Ballet.

The next week, Oct. 7-9, the symphony performs Hannah Kendall's "Tuxedo 'de' Gama," Unsuk Chin's "Graffiti" and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 7." Hear chamber music at an Oct. 10 concert.

Catch "Exotic Birds," featuring flutist Claire Chase and pianist Jeremy Denk and works by Debussy, Messiaen and Kaija Saariaho, Oct. 14-17.

Violinist Pekka Kuusisto joins the symphony Oct. 21-23 to play the U.S. premiere of "Violin Concerto" by Bryce Dessner, a member of rock band The National; the work was commissioned by the symphony. The evening also includes Beethoven's "Leonore Overture No. 2" and Schubert's "Symphony 5."

Violinist Ray Chen, accompanied on piano by Julio Elizalde, performs a concert Oct. 24, and pianist Yefim Bronfman joins the symphony Oct. 28-30 for "Kongsgaard Variations" by Anders Hillborg, "Symphony for Wind Instruments" by Richard Strauss and Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 3."

Info: sfsymphony.org or 415-864-6000.

Cal Performances: Grammy-nominated violinist Tessa Lark and pianist Amy Yang open Cal Performances' season Oct. 3. Trumpeter and singer-songwriter Bria Skonberg plays jazz Oct. 9, while the Danish String Quartet performs Oct. 10. Hear Haydn and Beethoven from the Takács Quartet Oct. 17, followed by the dance group Pilobolus' 50th anniversary program Oct. 21-22.

The month closes out with tenor Jonas Kaufmann and pianist Helmut Deutsch in recital Oct. 24, four-time Grammy

Robin's Recipes by Robin Scott Wray

Raspberry chicken

This recipe comes out of "The Silver Palate Cookbook." I usually make the blueberry chicken but decided to make the raspberry instead. It is a perfect warm-weather dish that comes together in minutes.

Ingredients

- 2 boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- ½ onion, minced
- ½ cup raspberry vinegar
- ½ cup chicken stock
- ¼ cup cream
- 2 tablespoons crushed tomatoes
- 2 packages fresh raspberries

Directions

Cut the chicken breasts in half lengthwise and pound a little so you have nice paillards. Melt the butter and olive oil in a sauté pan, add the chicken and cook until lightly browned on both sides. Remove from pan and set aside. Add the onion and cook until soft. Add the vinegar and chicken stock and reduce by half. Add the cream, tomatoes and one package of raspberries. Return the chicken to the pan and simmer for a few minutes until cooked through. To serve, place a chicken breast on each plate, spoon the sauce over and sprinkle with fresh raspberries. Enjoy!

Festival, continued from page 25

Rafael as part of the 64-minute "Shorts: The New Environmentalists" program and will stream online.

A third film with local connections is "Plant Heist," an 18-minute documentary from co-director and former Tiburon resident Chelsi de Cuba. The film focuses on the battle to protect native succulents from a multimillion-dollar international ring of poachers who risk their lives on coastal cliffs to steal the plants. It shows at 3 p.m. Oct. 12 at the Rafael as part of the 60-minute "Shorts: Pale Blue Eyes" program and is also streaming online.

The 11-day film festival kicks off Oct. 7 with a 6 p.m. screening of "Cryano" and on-stage conversation with director Joe Wright ("Atonement," "Darkest Hour") at the Rafael. The musical adaptation of Edmond Rostand's 1897 play "Cyrano de Bergerac" stars Peter Dinklage, perhaps best known for playing Tyrion Lannister on HBO's "Game of Thrones," as the title character.

The festival's opening night gala follows from 9 to 11 p.m. at the Marin Country Mart in Larkspur.

"C'mon C'mon," directed by Berkeley native Mike Mills ("Beginners"), screens as the festival's centerpiece 6 p.m. Oct. 12 at the Rafael. The movie stars Joaquin Phoenix as a radio journalist who interviews kids across the country about the future of the world while also taking care of his nephew as his family deals with a mental-health crisis. Mills, who also wrote the film, is set to appear.

if you go

The 44th annual film fest runs Oct. 7-17, with in-person events taking place in Mill Valley, San Rafael and Berkeley. The festival is also screening several of its films online.

• "Boys and Girls": A short dance film directed by and starring Tiburon's Caroline Liviakis, will play as part of the "Shorts: The Oceans" program at the Mill Valley Film Festival. It screens at 8 p.m. Oct. 11 at the Smith Rafael Film Center in San Rafael and will stream on-demand online as part of the festival's virtual program.

• "Tule Elk: The Killing of a Native Species": documentary short featuring Belvedere's Marty Griffin, will play as part of "Shorts: The New Environmentalists." It screens at 4 p.m. Oct. 9 at the Rafael and will stream on-demand.

• "Plant Heist": A documentary short from

The festival will also host special screenings of "Passing" at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 14 and 2 p.m. Oct. 15, also at the Rafael. In her directorial debut, actor Rebecca Hall's ("Vicky Christina Barcelona," "Christine") film about passing as white in the Jim Crow era stars Tessa Thompson ("Creed," TV's "Westworld") and Ruth Negga ("Loving"); both Negga and Hall will be on the hand for the Oct. 14 screening.

This year's festival will pay tribute to director Jane Campion, who will receive the festival's Mind the Gap Award championing filmmaking by women, non-binary people and other marginalized groups, and Kenneth Branagh.

Campion was the first woman director to win the prestigious Palme d'Or at the Cannes Film Festival, for the 1993 film "The Piano"; that film also made her just the second female director to be nominated for an Academy Award for Best Director.

Sullivan's "The Great Khan" runs Oct. 13-19. The play focuses on issues of race, identity and culture in telling the story of Jayden, a nerdy Black teenager who saves a girl, Ant, from a sexual assault. He's forced to move to keep safe from the boys who attacked her, while Ant tries to reject the tough-girl persona she adopts in the wake of the attack.

former Tiburon resident Chelsi de Cuba will play as part of "Shorts: Pale Blue Eyes." It screens at 3 p.m. Oct. 12 at the Rafael and will stream on-demand.

• Tickets for in-person screenings: For most films, tickets are $16.50 general admission, $15 for seniors, $14 for California Film Institute members and $8 for students and youth 12 and under. Special programs are extra, and there is an additional fee for the after-parties.

• Tickets for online screenings: $8 general, $6 for California Film Institute members. Online passes for comprehensive access to online films, programs and special events are $119-$139 for California residents and $109-$129 for non-residents.

• On the web: For a complete list of films and events, and to purchase tickets, visit mvff.com.

Campion will participate in an on-stage conversation after a 6 p.m. Oct. 8 screening of her latest film, "The Power of the Dog," starring Benedict Cumberbatch, Jesse Plemons and Kirsten Dunst, at the Rafael. The film also screens 3:30 p.m. Oct. 9 at CinéArts Sequoia in Mill Valley.

Acclaimed actor-director Branagh will be honored in an on-stage conversation after a 6:30 p.m. Oct. 15 screening of "Belfast" at the Rafael. He wrote and directed the film, about a boy growing up in a working-class family in 1960s Troubles-era Northern Ireland. The film also screens 2 p.m. Oct. 16 at CinéArts Sequoia.

Several actors and filmmakers will be recognized during the festival's spotlight events, including Denis Villeneuve ("Arrival"), director of the sci-fi-adventure film "Dune"; Paolo Sorrentino ("The Great Beauty"), whose "The Hand of God" tells the story of an awkward young man growing up in 1980s Naples, Italy; and San Francisco native Simon Rex ("Scary Movie 3"), who stars in "Red Rocket," a tragic comedy about a washed-up porn actor who returns home to Texas; Rex, Villeneuve and Sorrentino will all appear in-person.

The festival will also spotlight "The Lost Daughter," which marks the feature-directing debut of Maggie Gyllenhaal. The film, an adaptation of Elena Ferrante's 2006 novel by the same name, will be honored with the festival's Ensemble Award in recognition of a cast that includes Olivia Colman, Jessie Buckley ("I'm Thinking of Ending Things"), Dakota Johnson, Ed Harris, Dagmara Dominczyk ("The Immigrant"), Paul Mescal (TV's "Normal People") and Peter Sarsgaard ("An Education"). An on-stage conversation with Gyllenhaal and producers Osnat Handelsman-Keren and Talia Kleinhendler follows the screening, set for 6 p.m. Oct. 16 at the Rafael; the film will also show noon Oct. 17 at CinéArts Sequoia.

Closing out this year's festival on Oct. 17 is Wes Anderson's "The French Dispatch," which pays homage to The New Yorker by imagining the history of a long-running fictional American magazine in France through vignettes about different writers. The film shows at 5 p.m. at the Rafael and at CinéArts Sequoia and is followed by the festival's closing night party, set for 8-10 p.m. at the Mill Valley Lumber Yard.
